The Callaway Diablo Edge Hybrid has been specifically designed to provide golfers a more forgiving, distance enhancing alternative to long irons. They were commended in Golf Digest's 2010 Hot List for their balance and explosive power. The Vertical CG Optimization uses a 30% thinner crown to help lower the center of gravity, and place it in-line where most golfers commonly strike the ball. This promotes shots that will fly far and high and land soft. The Diablo Edge Hybrid's unique sole design provides more shot versatility than standard-shaped soles, meaning it's a bit easier to hit out of less-than-ideal turf conditions so even if hitting out of the short grass, you can still get a solid strike on the ball. The face utilizes Variable Face Thickness Technology for precision milled and variable thickness across the face for a hotter, more responsive clubface that allows the ball to spring off at greater speeds, which means more overall distance. Finally, an offset hosel helps players square the clubface at impact for straighter shots and provides a little extra confidence when you line up.
